THUMPING HEADACHES.

Many Norway Women Have Them, but Few Know the Real Cause.

Dull, thumping headaches, Sick, prostrating headaches, Dizzy, whirling, blind headaches—Point to disorders of the kidneys. Tell of uric poisons in the blood. Narcotics may ease the pain. But won't cure the cause. Doan's Kidney Pills cure the kidneys. Remove uric poisons, purify the blood. Banish headache, backache, urinary ills.

Here's South Paris testimony to prove it.

Mrs. Susan F. Harlow, living on Skillings Avenue, South Paris, Me., says:

"I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on several occasions and have always found them to be a very good kidney remedy. They soon strengthened my kidneys and were very efficient in relieving the dull headaches from which I suffered so severely. Recently feeling that my kidneys needed a tonic, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills from F. A. Shurtleff & Co.'s drug store and had taken but a few doses when I was relieved."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and no other.

THE Call of the Crows.

Sweet nature's harmonies! Warm winds that rush through swinging boughs and bowing under brush. Make music that my soul loves best and knows.

There is no music in the call of the crows; But when it falls upon the careless ear Accompanied by sounds both old and queer, The musical stirring of the gusty brook, The thrush song in some low sequestered nook, The squirrel's cross complaining overhead, Upon the rising blades in greenling fields— The mating crowd from hostile audiences, I know just where a bed of violets is; There let me sit just at the close of day, Where crows call late, to watch the squirrels play.

A Child's Letter.

The 4th Grade children of the Hamilton school, Spokane, Wash., have written letters to the 4th Grade children of Norway. Here is one:

Spokane, Wash., March 23, 1909.

DEAR FRIEND—I am going to tell you about Spokane, the city in which I live. Spokane is built in a valley and in this valley runs the Spokane river. It has two falls that are very beautiful.

We have 33 schools, and our school is named after Mr. Hamilton. Our school is as good as any school. We have six rooms in our school. My teacher's name is Miss Conchiff, and she is a very kind teacher.

We are going to have a fair at Seattle. I have some drawings to be sent there. I would like for you to go, and as you go by, come and see Spokane city.

I will close for this time. Hoping to hear from you soon, and about your city and what you play. Yours truly,

NAOMA RATLIFF.

My address is, E 803 E Road Ave.

A Letter From South Dakota.

Burley, S. D., April 7th, 1909.

I have lately received several letters from old time Lovell friends that will no doubt be of interest to many of your readers and send herewith extracts from the same. Accidents have been mistaken about the meeting-house at the village being built before that at the Centre. I was but seven years old when the first church was built, but I can remember many things that happened there with great distinctness. And I cannot get it out of my head that the money that Deacon Stearns brought back from his sojourn in the west was used to build the village church.

I saw some time ago that my old friend at school, Spokane, Wash., had crossed the deep old river of death, and I felt that a true and noble man had gone to his reward. He was several years my senior; and when at school a few mischievous boys would sometimes pick upon and try to torment poor, simple, foolish me, I always found in Cutler a friend and staunch defender. And while life lasts, the memory of his kindly deeds, will ever remain as bright spots of sunshine that cheered me through my schoolboy days.

One here in S. D. and I think all over the west, spring's work is starting in late, and seedling began April 5th, and on the 6th, 4 inches of snow fell which is slowly melting. Our winter has been the hardest since 1891-2.

The first of May I expect to visit for two weeks with friends in Wyoming; then attend the L. O. F. Grand lodge which meets at Deadwood, S. D. May 18 to 21, then return home, and soon after go to Wayland, Ohio, for my summer vacation with my daughter and family.

The Hon. H. F. Andrews of Exira, sends me the following with regard to the Rev. Valentine Little (6th), William Coffin (5th), John (4th), Moses (3rd), Moses (2nd), George (1st), John (1st), and John (1st).

Rev. Valentine Little (6th), William Coffin (5th), John (4th), Moses (3rd), Moses (2nd), George (1st), John (1st), and John (1st).

Nov. 9th, 1815, Mary, daughter of Lieut. Jonathan Clark of Bethel, born April 24, 1783, who died in Lovell, Jan. 26, 1881; married 2d Sept. 15, 1831, Miranda, daughter of Rev. Nathan Church, born in Bridgton, Jan. 7, 1791, who died Feb. 5, 1879. He graduated from Dartmouth College in 1811, studied theology; moved to Bridgton in 1820, where he was principal of the Academy; moved to Lovell in 1823, where he was many years pastor of the Congregational church. He was also an up-to-date farmer for his time and a skillful carpenter and mechanic.

His farm was on the hill south of Lovell Center on the west side of the road, opposite the Dea. Stearns farm, where Silas Heald afterwards lived many years and now occupied by Dea. Albanos Pottle. He returned to Salisbury in his declining years, where he died June 4, 1852. Children by first wife: Salina Dodge born Oct. 1, 1816, married Major John Barker, Orinisa Parker born Oct. 20, 1821, married Hon. Abraham A. Barker; Caroline Eliza born Dec. 12, 1823, married Col. Eliza Barker; Henry Martyn born April 11, 1828, died in Georgia. Children, by second wife: Miranda Mary born Feb. 18, 1836, married Lorenzo Dow.

From my old friend and schoolmate, Albanos Pottle, I have received the following: "I can find nothing in the church records of what year the old Town House at Lovell Centre was built. The church was organized in 1798. The new church at the Centre was built in 1831, the one at the village one year later. The first settled pastor, was called by the church and town in 1823 and was dismissed in 1834."

Mrs. Lucy W. Gilbrandon, another old friend and schoolmate now living at Chipewaga Falls, Wis., writes me that I missed two old Lovell friends, William Gary and David Lord. Mr. Gary I had forgotten about, but David was one of my old schoolmates and I should not have forgotten him, although I think I have not met him since he went as a volunteer in the war.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

For Corn-Meal Crisps.—Pour slowly one cupful of boiling water on to seven-eighths of a cupful of granulated yellow corn meal. Stir until perfectly smooth, and add two and one-half teaspoonsful of melted butter and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Spread as thinly and uniformly as possible (using a long broad-bladed knife) on a generously buttered inverted dripping pan. Bake in a moderate oven until well browned, and cut at once into three-inch squares. It is absolutely necessary that the water used in the preparation of these crisps should be poured from a tea kettle of boiling water.

Do this with your children.

School children should be fed plentifully and frequently on Quaker Oats. It makes the best possible breakfast for anyone who is to work with either brain or muscle. It's easy to prove this in your own family. Increase the daily consumption of Quaker Oats and you'll see an almost immediate improvement in the health and energy of those who eat it. The regular size package of Quaker Oats sells at 10c, the large family package size at 25c; the family package with a piece of china 30c.

Breakfast on Quaker Oats every day.

As Helpless as a Child Rheumatism the Cause

Finds Almost Immediate Relief in Uric-O, The Remedy Recommended Alone for this one Disease.

T. B. Singleton, 919 North Elizabeth St. Lima, Ohio, advises all who suffer with Rheumatism, no matter what form to commence at once a Uric-O treatment, and find in it a harmless, speedy cure. He writes as follows:

"After being stricken down with Rheumatism for four years, in which time I spent over $400.00 with doctors and treatments at Sanatoriums, I have found right here in my own town a remedy of wonderful merit. Through the recommendation of Druggist York-kamp, I have used two bottles of Uric-O, and can truthfully say that it has done me more good than all the other medicines, baths and doctors combined."

I was at times as helpless as a child and could not even dress myself. Since taking Uric-O, I feel as active in my limbs as ever, I am again an able bodied man.

Anyone suffering with this terrible disease, should at once procure a bottle of this remedy.

Uric-O, is sold at Noyes Drug Store at 75c and $1.00 a bottle. You can obtain a liberal sample by writing to the Smith Drug Co., 208 Smith Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y.

Notes on Jewelry.

For day wear, amethysts are undoubtedly the fashion. The really well dressed woman has sets of these hat pins, long watch chains and brooch to match. In most of the hat pins the stones are elongated or spherical. There are some of the prettiest long chains in which the amethysts are cut square and quite flat, and the links of the chain are of gold and about half an inch in length. This is a smart design and looks equally well when worn with either a tailored or lingerie waist. Lapis lazuli is also popular and becoming for brooches. Large square or diamond shaped ones, set in silver, are very stylish, worn at the throat to hold ones about in place.

Wonderful are the hat pins that will be part of the hat trimming this summer. The heads are copied from antique jewelry in Italy and France, and strongly reflect the revival of the period in the jewelry period. Much of the jewelry now looks more like the kind sold by shops that deal in fancy costumes than it does of the 20th century. The beautiful marquise setting of tiny stones has been taken up. Some of these hat pins, there fore look like the exquisite circular rings so much in fashion just now.

Down in the lesser prices, hat pins are still artistic. These are made of conical shaped pieces of crystals in exquisite colors, without stones, and are mounted in quilt fashion in thick rims of silver gilt.

The imitation baroque pearl is more in evidence than ever. It comes in ball shape, in balloon shape, in dagger shape and in long slim points. These will be worn on hats of every color, and a woman should own a set of them if her hats follow widely different color schemes.

The large white crystal, well cut and mounted on a heavy long pin, is one of the favorite hat pins for the every day hat. It can be used also in combination with any color. It goes without saying that of jet there is the widest variety and choice. This will be worn on everything from ball gowns to linen cost suits.

Hints for Business Women.

In considering the qualities in a woman which make for success in business, I should rank first, second and third, the ability to hold her tongue about her business affairs. This quality would naturally include considerable tact. Then fourth and last, should come trustworthiness. I said last advisedly, for the word involves not only the keeping of promises made, but the ability to execute orders, the willingness to work long hours and the punctuality that so often means money in the business world.

But first I want to discriminate between the woman who is in earnest and one who is not. If we believe certain investigators who have interviewed hundreds of prominent business men on the subject of women employees, there are about nine women out of every ten who look on their means of self-support as a mere period of waiting for The Prince who is going to crown them with orange blossoms and end their troubles for all time.

They accordingly want something that brings in immediate and easy returns, even though there is no future in that particular line of work. Every well thought point of view is quite right—for nine women out of ten. Their employers understand them, and pay them accordingly.

But supposing you are the tenth woman. Suppose that, while you may not care actually to sign a guarantee that you will never marry, you are yet planning to look out for your future just as carefully as though you never intended to marry anyone.

Then you have got to prove your intentions to your employer by filling your place even better than a man would—you have got to begin at the beginning, learn the ropes, work over time, and in every way place a valuation on experience as such.

With all this, you ought to be neat, and you must be strong. Business men, I believe are naturally nearer than business women. Perhaps this is because the build of their clothing is nearer to a girl's, though it is far more likely that men realize more keenly than do women the value of an immaculate appearance as a business asset.

Then as for health, a woman cannot—if she is to be a successful business woman—fall back on her physical ailments as an excuse for not doing her work. She must be either fit, or pretend to be fit, right straight along. Not that she need be a mountain of strength, but she must take the best care of herself. She can no more afford once missing her proper rest or food, than can an athlete in training.

Now, about this matter of holding one's tongue. Perhaps you have heard the riddle of why a man never tells his business secrets to his wife. It is because of the common belief that a woman has only two views of a secret—either it is not worth keeping or it is too good to keep.

Now, it would be hard lines to think a woman had not the craftiness to preserve a secret if she wanted to. I think the fact that so many women do not is often due to the warm-hearted desire to share their lives and their interests with some one else. But this is one of the cases where a virtue becomes a fault. If the matter concerns others besides yourself, it is not yours to share, and you may do undreamed-of harm by talking about it.

You will observe that the stenographers and private secretaries who hold such responsible positions are all reserved women who do not "talk shop" outside of the shop. Now, in regard to telling your own private plans and ambitions, can you not see that the most faithful sworn confidant, unless she is a little more thoughtful than the average person, is just as likely as not to give you away quite accidentally?

Those of us who believe in mental telepathy can even see that the more minds there are thinking of the same thing, the greater likelihood there is of some one's learning that thing by intuition.

So that it is like showing the enemy the inside of your fortifications, or, rather, like showing your hand in a game of whist. You can't tell who is going to make use of the tip, nor in what way it may come to work you harm. It is a good general rule never to talk about what you are going to do, but only about what you have already done.

You may argue that you sometimes have to ask advice. Very true, the more good you can get, the better. But do not go to girls who are no more experienced than yourself, and do not go to anyone whose advice you do not intend to consider pretty carefully. And then ask only advice about the one point in hand, and not sympathy, for the whole general state of affairs. Advice you buy at a risk, and promiscuous sympathy is a luxury not to be indulged in by the woman who aspires to any degree of success in business.

Trustworthiness, finally, a woman must show if she is to receive advancement. Perhaps you will call the matter of holding your tongue on a brand of trustworthiness, and so it is. The quality I have in mind is rather what one might call dependableness.

You must keep every promise made, no matter what the cost. Be chary, therefore, about making promises that you are not sure you have the ability to keep. And almost as important, be punctual to the minute in keeping your appointments.

To a business man of his time is sometimes worse than to a roly poly man, for a delay at any point along the line of his busy day's schedule may mean a total rearrangement of that schedule, and perhaps a cutting out of part of it. Get there if you can, by hook or by crook or by taxi, and if you see you are not going to get there as planned telephone, telegraph, or in some way notify whoever is counting on your appearance.

There are at least some of the qualities which make for success for the business woman.

Charged With Adultery.

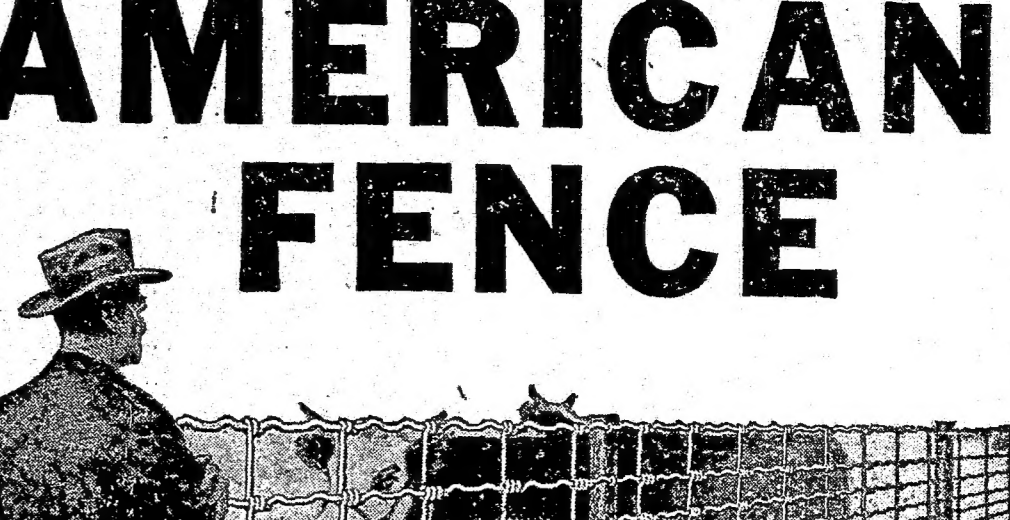

John Alton Wilson of Roxbury, was before Judge R. C. Boothby of the Livemore Falls Municipal Court, on a warrant sworn out by John H. Huston, of Roxbury, charging him with adultery to which Wilson pleaded not guilty.

Wilson was bound over to the grand jury, and his bail was fixed at $500. Failing to secure bondsmen he will be taken to Auburn jail today. Huston was compelled to recognize in the sum of $100 for his appearance at the April term of the supreme judicial court.

Huston is 33, Mrs. Huston 28, and Wilson's age was given as 24.

Daniel A. Stevens.
On Wednesday, April 7, occurred the death of Daniel A. Stevens at his home in York Village.
Mr. Stevens was born at Norway on July 28, 1815. He served in the war of the Rebellion. In 1877 he located in York. For several years he conducted a grocery store at York Harbor but after the death of his brother-in-law, Wilson Walker, he took charge of his store at York Village.
Mr. Stevens belonged to the order of Masons, and was also a member and deacon of the First Congregational church. For many years he was a prime mover in the Veterans' Association at York.
In the early part of the winter he was taken sick and confined to the house nearly all the time. The early part of last week he had a sudden attack of acute bronchitis which resulted in his death.
He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Walter Badger, one sister, Mrs. Walter Badger, and two brothers, Mr. and Mrs. George Stevens. Funeral services were held at the house on Friday at 2 o'clock.
The York Transcript says of him: "During the years which Mr. Stevens has lived in York he has gained the love and admiration of all who knew him. His death comes as a sudden shock to all, as it was expected that his recovery was a certainty."

Dogs may be a trouble but it must be a pretty cruel and depraved person to pour scalding water over a dumb beast. Eugene Hayden's pet dog was badly scalded and had one eye nearly destroyed the other day. Here is work for the society with a long name.
The Easter music at the Universalist church, Sunday evening, was attended by a very large audience who came to hear the beautiful Easter music and hear the little folks recite their Easter pieces. Some time before the services were to commence the auditorium was filled and extra seats were brought in to accommodate a large number. The program as printed last week was finely rendered and the sweet music, recitations and the readings were all thoroughly appreciated. The altar was very prettily decorated with evergreen arches, potted plants and Easter lilies, giving the church a very pretty effect.

A notable gathering of medical men will be witnessed in New York city next month, when the forty-ninth annual commencement exercises of the New York Homoeopathic Medical College will be held and the alumni of the college will hold their annual banquet on Wednesday and Thursday, May 12 and 13. Many will spend the entire week in the metropolis, for the college has arranged a special clinical week beginning May 10, to which all homoeopathic practitioners are invited without charge. Norway is interested in the college because of the presence there of one of its young men, Stephen P. Jewett, who will graduate next year.
William W. Badlingame, who has made a good record as a member of the New Hampshire legislature, was a clerk in the Blue Store at Norway when that was under the management of Theodore L. Webb, and was also the slide trombone player in the Norway band and orchestra. New Hampshire people tell the story that he has refrained from speaking in the legislature but has been an efficient worker in committees and consultations, and that he demonstrated a capacity for going with the times. That last is the principal thing, anyway, and a legislator who does that is a success.

Mrs. Powers' Millinery Opening.
Fashion.
Fair Eve devised a walking suit
Of jungle grasses, sort and crimp;
She thought it was never used and cut.
But Adam grunted, "Rather skimpy!"
A cloak of palm leaves, sought for miles,
She made, and came to be as admired;
But Adam said, "The silly style!"
You women wear just make me tired!"
She built herself a little hat
Of lilacs (Eve was very clever),
And asked him what he thought of that!
And Adam blurted, "Why, I never!"
So next she placed upon her head
A feathered tri-o-four creation.
The little word that Adam said
Is barred from parlor conversation.
Yet Eve refused to be a dowl,
And tied an autumn-tinted sash on.
"I'll dress to please myself," she vowed,
"For what does Adam know of fashion?"
"What does he care to know of fashion?"
He scoffed and says I cannot guess.
Well, then my law shall be my whim—
And that shall change with every season."
Since then, revolving eyes and heads,
The gayest fashions and the queerest,
Adam declares, "It's just the thing!"
While Adam murmurs, "It is, dearest,"
It is barred from parlor conversation.

It has been said in the older physiologies that "man is fearfully and wonderfully made," and the saying is equally true of the spring hat. The average man knows but little concerning women's hats, nor can he follow the wanderings of the master minds that originate the styles from year to year. To him they are ever a source of wonder and often appear to be the result of accident rather than design, but he is seldom rash enough to venture any adverse criticism whatever the shape, and so the hats are left for the admiration and enjoyment of their wearers.
To the average mortal the feminine headgear appears to grow more striking from year to year and those of the coming season seem to have reached the limit.
A hat which will without doubt be very popular suggests an inverted wash dish, or the hats worn by John Chinaman on his native heath. Some of these hats are trimmed with a simple wreath of roses or other flowers, and in some the floral display is combined with ribbons. Still others of the same mode are filled in underneath with chiffon or some other light fluffy material, while the decoration of the "dome" is restricted to an artistic arrangement of ribbon and two or three way plumes. This hat is worn tilted on one side to give a smart effect, and perhaps also to show the filling.
There is a hat, an ample straw affair, singular in proportion and shape to those which we used to wear when we went baying and when the hat had been worn about two seasons. This hat is not regular in shape and the more irregular it is the better it is apparently suited to the coming season. Some of them look as if they had been cast by the gods as if they had been caught in the door. Still others are rolled up a trifle in front, or on one side, or even all the way round. Some of them are decorated by a wide band of ribbon ending at one side in a bow almost equal to the proportions of the hat itself, others with a spray of fruit or berries, and still others with a rose or two as big as an oyster bowl, but when it is trimmed and on the head of a pretty girl it is chic.
Mrs. R. L. Powers was not able to be at the store at the opening, but it is hoped a little later she will be able to attend to the business as she is very much better. Mrs. V. W. Hills, Mrs. Charles Carroll, Josie Kay and Miss Jenne from South Paris were in charge and they were kept busy. There were 130 trimmed hats shown.
The window was in green and white, "Mardi" had a white suit of white muslin, lace embroidered fillet. Her hat was of white pyroxine braid, band of fillet of lace, the new ostrich novelty, sunflower rosette, black velvet ribbon caught with a jet cabochon.
Catawba and abnath are the fashionable colors. Though these may be the pronounced leaders among the new shades, nearly all colors are used in this year's millinery. In the greens are reseda, myrtle and apple.
While the crowns of the hats are very large they are trimmed so severe and the trimming so huge the hat they do not have a larger effect on the head than many a smaller crown of by-gone seasons with flying trimmings and bows.
We looked over some of the pretty hats. A black jet turban had for trimming a bunch of fruit from which drooped two graceful ostrich feathers. An amethyst turban was made of satin braid with a band of amethyst velvet and bow, a large rose of a lighter shade and green, and faced with green. A cherry hat of cherries and foliage, with a butterfly bow of castor color ribbon down the center and back.
A large turban of novelty braid of green and blue, rosette of ribbon of the same shades fastened with a cabochon to match. A peach basket with flower crown of blue forget-me-nots, ruff of white net over blue around the rim, French rose of the catawba shades with lilac foliage.
The original Billie Burke in wood straw trimmed with a simple bow of two shades of green ribbon with a band of jet beads and a jet cabochon. A catawba turban made of cable braid sewed on in a pattern, a sunflower ribbon rosette in same shade with a black Memphis feather from the center of the rosette.
A revival of the popular Charlotte Corday had a crown of hand-embroidered figured chiffon in white and pink, around which was a wreath of apple blossoms, lace draped around rim and a flat pink bow in back. A bluet Gainsborough with large crown of spotted net, one big pink rose on left side. An old Alice blue turban, faced with white, two white ostrich plumes, rosette of forget-me-nots. A bucket shape with Tuscan band and rim, and a black fancy braid tam crown, black wing. A French poke in wood shades, the hat in lighter wood, the three large ostrich feathers in darker and the streamers in the two shades, roses in pastel shades.
A black mushroom made of jet lace with edge of lace, big velvet bow in back and a small bunch of moss roses on the side. A bonnet for the 8th grade here, pyroxine black, trimmed with pink ribbon and ties, pink apple blossoms and white forget-me-nots. A misses hat, very large Manila with a big bow of ciel blue, that covered the whole crown, steel buckle. Another misses hat, hyacinth of Tuscan chip, bow of green velvet, crown covered with pink, blue and green hyacinths.
Some hats have jaw strings, i. e., a band of silk or other material, an inch or more wide that goes under the chin or jaws, something the way children used to hold their hats on with elastic. A new thing is the circular band. These are made to go in the crown of the hat or rather the huge hats rest on the bands. That holds the hats up off the hair and saves disarranging the hair. It also gives a more stylish effect to the hat.

AFTER SUFFERING TEN YEARS
Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound
MARLTON, N. J.—I feel that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has given me new life. I suffered for ten years with serious female troubles, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. First Day of April Joke.
The President of the First National of Sias H. Burnham is president of the above bank, and he is a former Norway boy. His friends here will read the story copied from a Lincoln paper with a smile.
President Sellock and secretary Whitten of the Commercial club, S. H. Burnham, W. E. Hardy and S. A. Foster did not take lunch today with L. W. Hill, head of the Great Northern and Burlington systems, in his private car. But it was not the first time.
Mr. Sellock was tasting his soup and Mr. Foster was considering whether he would take ham and boiled cabbage at the Commercial club dining room, when a lady Whitten rushed in and remarked:
"Louie Hill, head of the Great Northern, is down in the yards in his private car and wants some of us to come down and take lunch with him. Will you go?"
"Sure," said Mr. Sellock. "Certainly," said Mr. Foster. Both dropped their napkins. J. W. McDonald was just about to order. Whitten called to him to come along. Mr. McDonald looked regretful. Said he had to meet Paul on 12-30. Would like very much to go but couldn't.
"Get Burnham," suggested Mr. Sellock. Mr. Whitten called up the First National.
"Delighted," said Mr. Burnham. "Stop for me. Just outside W. E. Hardy, ex-president of club, was encountered on his way to lunch. Would he go along? You bet. Down the street hurried the four. At the First National they dropped their hats to get Mr. Burnham. He was talking business with a customer, but with an "excuse me" he grabbed his hat and rushed out as though he had been summoned to a fire.
But this is really a little ahead of the story.
Just before Mr. Whitten was about to lunch he was called to the phone. This is the conversation that followed:
"This is Mr. Whitten?"
"Yes."
"This is Sauer of Minneapolis, with the Burlington. Do you remember me?"
"Yes, I do. How are you?"
"Very nicely thank you. Mr. Hill is here at the Burlington station. He would like to have you and some of the club lunch with him. Can you come?"
"Would be very glad to," replied Mr. Whitten.
"Bring four with you, we have room for five," said the voice.
"I'll get them," replied the accommodating Mr. Whitten.
He did. Down to the Burlington depot he went. Mr. Sellock was mentally preparing his usual address of welcome. Mr. Burnham was telling what a fine fellow this man Hill is. At the depot there was no special car in sight.
"Where is Mr. Hill's special?" asked Mr. Whitten of an official.
"He isn't in town that I know of?" was the reply.
"Oh yes he is. His representative invited me to take luncheon with him," confidently remarked Mr. Whitten.
"Oh did he? By phone I suppose? Maybe you don't know what day this is?"
Then they tumbled. Everybody grumbled but rather laboriously.
"Well I wasn't over to the club," said Mr. Burnham. "They won't know I was caught."
The culprit didn't have the courage to return to the club for lunch. They took it at the depot, and then edged up town singly and by the back way. A meeting will be held to take ways and means to get even with one George J. Woods.
And over at the club the story went the rounds, and sedate business men rolled on the sofas and laughed and waited for Whitten to get back.
John W. S. Hodgdon has been put in charge of the Horace Mitchell grammar school at Kittery Point village, the public grammar school of that part of Kittery. He began work there on April 5. Mr. Hodgdon taught the 8th grade here last year. He was hired with special instruction that he keep order in that grade, and we have it on authority that he is an excellent disciplinarian.

Administrator's Sale of Real Estate.

By virtue of license from the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Oxford, I shall sell at Public Auction to the highest bidder thereof, at my office in Fryeburg, Maine, on Wednesday, the first day of May A. D. 1939, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, so much of the following described real estate, as may be necessary, under the terms of said license, and which was of the estate of the late James Heald, deceased, as follows:

One quarter of one acre in common and undivided with William E. Thompson and Lydia E.
Heald, in Lovell, then described in deed from Beering Mead, to said James Heald, recorded in Oxford Western District Registry of Deeds in Book 59, Page 35, viz., a lot of land on the east side of the main road leading from Lovell to Stonham, as first corner of said parcel, and running southeasterly to the corner of Harris
C. McKen's land on the lake, then southeasterly corner of number twenty-six in the fifth division of lots in said town, thence westerly to the shore of the Kezar Pond, to a stake and stones, thence in a southeasterly direction, following the shore of Kezar Pond, to land of Webster Abbott, thence northwesterly by Abbott's land to said road, thence by the land line of said road to the first bound, reserving the barn above named.

Also one half in common and undivided with said Lydia Heald of the homestead lot and buildings thereon at the "Harbor" in Fryeburg occupied by intestate at his decease.

EDWARD E. HASTINGS,
Administrator of the Estate of James Heald.

Cruel Drivers—Are You One?

1. Did you ever use the whip when not absolutely necessary?
2. Is your horse bright-eyed and happy, or is his eye dull and his heart heavy with the miseries of over-loading, fast driving or your severities and neglect?
3. Do you frequently rest him, and favor him when the road is soft, or the load heavy, or the grade upward?
4. Do you distress him with a check rein (a cruel strap), or obstruct his sight with blinders, or expose him to torment of flies by shortening his tail or mite?
5. Do you clip his legs in the fall or winter (a rank cruelty)?
6. Do you protect him as much as possible from storms, cold winds, severe weather, and from hot summer sun?
7. Are you careful to have him regularly fed, frequently watered, to keep his stable bright and clean, light and wholesome and his bed free from coals, sticks and other discomforts?
8. Do you frequently oil the axils, lest they become dry and greatly increase his toil, and often change his shoes lest pain and lameness result?
9. Does he regard you as his kind and considerate friend—or his dreaded taskmaster?
10. Do you realize that he has no voice to tell his distress and must rely on you and to you to protect him from misery? Are you forbearing, kind and patient with him? Do you study his comfort and treat him as you would wish were you in his place?
11. Are you a cruel man—if you do not?

In Five Minutes.

Take your sour stomach—or maybe you call it indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapiesin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your stomach misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness and many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your mouth fills like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself, after your next meal, that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapiesin.

I shot an arrow into the air, it fell in the distance, I knew not where, till a neighbor said that it killed his calf, and I had to pay him six and a half ($6.50). I bought some poison to slay some rats and my neighbor swore it killed his cats; and, rather than argue across the fence, I paid him four dollars and fifty cents ($4.50). One night I set sailing, a toy balloon, and hoped it would soar till it reached the moon; but the candle fell onto a farmer's straw, and he said: I must settle or go to law. And that is the way with the random shot; it never lites in the proper spot; and the joke you spring, that you think so smart, may have a wound in some fellow's heart.

Fashion's Innovations.

The first impression one receives from a survey of the new spring models is of a subtle change somewhere in the general styles. The closer one looks, however, the skirts are wider and the waistline lowered by at least an inch. There are still the long, graceful lines, and the waist is slanted toward the front, but there is less of the clinging, springing characteristics, because the fullness is—not always, but very often—let in below the knees in the form of an inserted panel, and this has a tendency to break the continuity of line, even though it does not interfere with the apparent length. In an infinite number of ways this effect is accomplished without marring the still desirable appearance of simplicity or getting any farther away from the tailored aspect that has been so highly pronounced in all modes of the waning season.

The later skirts are gored, but, where the circular is deemed preferable, it is out with quite an exaggerated flare, lest they become dry and greatly increase his toil, and often change his shoes lest pain and lameness result?

They are delightful, all of these draperies, so simple and so effective. An Empire skirt that is slightly fluted around the waist line, cut circular, is cascaded down the front, giving excellent scope for band trimming or braiding with the new white muslins that are becoming so popular. With equal effectiveness the cascading sometimes is allowed to fall at one side, and then there is usually a girde of silk at the top, knotted, and with long ends that fall alongside.

The classical Princess is a favorite, and severe types of it are being adopted for at-home wear. They are fitting or semi-fitting, and have the modified Empire effect at the back. It is difficult to trim these silhouettes. They are not to appear wrapper-like, even the close-fitting ones, and therefore all sorts of applied devices are resorted to, such as, for instance, bolero effects suggested by braid or embroidery, or the insertion of a band at one sleeve, and that extending not more than 12 or 14 inches.

Storing Winter Clothes.

A little care bestowed at this time of the year before the winter clothes are put away may greatly increase their usefulness next season, and the great secret in keeping furs and woollen garments safe from moth and mildew is in the thorough cleaning before they are put away, for if a moth goes into the closet or packing box with them damage cannot be prevented.

All woollen articles should be carefully looked over before putting away and every spot of every description carefully cleaned for moths always seize upon a spot of every sort as a choice morsel.

The first step is to remove every article from closets, wardrobes and other receptacles where woollen clothing is to be stored.

Clothes moths have a decided aversion for newspapers, and it is well to use them plentifully when packing away winter clothes. Woollen garments, blankets and wool comforts should receive attention as soon as they can be spared.

A thorough inspection should be given to all winter clothing before they are packed away. The first step is to remove every article from closets, wardrobes and other receptacles where woollen clothing is to be stored.

Moths delight in feasting on fur, bird wings and other ornaments in millinery and the best way to preserve them is to line paper boxes with old muslin all around the inside of the box, then put in the articles and place camphor balls through them, then pack in strips of paper over the joining of the band box and cover and set the box away in a dark place.

Bags of all sizes and descriptions are invaluable at this time of the year for holding woolen garments and other made up of any old soft material, but there must be no hole in the fabric large enough for a moth miller to creep in.

Worthy of Confidence.

An Offer Backed Up by One of the Most Reputable Concerns in Norway.

We will either cure you of constipation or pay for all the medicine used during the trial. You pay us nothing if we fail. That's a mighty broad statement, and we mean every word of it. We will back it up with our own personal reputation, too. Could anything be more fair and secure for you?

The most scientific, common sense treatment is Rexall Ordinaries. Their active principle is a very recent scientific discovery that is odorless, colorless, and tasteless; very pronounced, gentle and pleasant in action, and particularly agreeable in every way. This ingredient does not cause any diarrhoea, nausea, flatulence or griping. Rexall Ordinaries are as pleasant to use as candy and are particularly good for children and delicate persons.

If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Ordinaries at our risk. Remember, you can only get them at our store. F. E. Stone, Norway, Me.

Athletics.

There seems to be among some people a common idea that the various forms of athletics among our high schools and colleges does more harm than good. Indeed a number of people are inclined to think that athletics in general are "relics of barbarism."

Although we are not all athletes, yet we feel it our duty to defend all just and honorable outdoor sports which are common to-day among our schools. All who are at all acquainted with the situation know that a great deal of the criticism comes from misunderstanding the spirit of the sport.

Some claim that the class of athletics generally found in our schools are the so-called "muckers." Who is it that knows the situation will believe this charge? If we judge athletics from our local institutions we are fully convinced that no cleaner or manly boys play than those on the athletic teams.

It seems to me that if any fault is to be found it is the fact that athletics are obliged to spend a great deal of their time on the athletic field. However, the schools of today are not considered primarily a place for study but rather an institution which makes and develops the man.

School life indeed might be classed as a world in miniature. The students are not desirous to stay back in the barracks. They seek their school but they rather they are anxious to represent their school in some way whether it is in athletics or some organization connected with the school. However, if the students are physically fitted they as a matter of course will take place. For it they are to win the respect of his fellows they must do something.

Again, shall we adopt the universal saying that athletics are in general unwholesome? There seems now no general or convincing argument that this principle is so. Recently statistics were presented by one of our Main school's showing that the honor students were among the athletes of the school. One must be a realist in order to do the best mental work.

Realizing therefore that the idea of school life is to make an all round development we fully sympathize with the athletes of our schools and believe that a great deal of criticism is uncalled for.

True Hospitality.

You have all heard the story of the truly hospitable Southern man, who, when unexpected travelers were forced to remain over night beneath his roof, set them down to a supper table bearing only bread and butter and water, with never an apology of any sort.

I wonder how many women could have stood such a nerve-racking test of hospitality without overwhelming the strangers within their gates with apologies for the meager repast. And yet the truly hospitable person is he who gives the best he has with a grace that precludes any criticism.

Once upon a time there was a woman possessed of only the smallest means. She meant the greatest planning to make both ends meet; yet she had a heart as big as all out-doors, and nothing gave her greater pleasure than to entertain her friends.

One afternoon after tea there came to call a woman who lived alone. And she stayed and stayed and stayed in the way that a woman with no husband and little ones pulling her homeward will stay. So many of the big heart and amiable spirit: "My dear, stay to dinner. I had planned to have four guests, but six are coming and so if you stay you will just balance the table."

Could anything have been more graciously hospitable than that? But the woman who would have had the hardihood to do that with no thought of the skimpy proportions that must be served to make a meal prepared for four stretch for eight? The majority of women would have carefully calculated the matter in their minds, have mentally weighed the pros and cons, and then acted accordingly without reference to the needs of the lonely caller.

A wealthy woman once said that the sweetest meal she ever had was eaten at the board of a friend who had little of this world's goods and who did all her own work.

Several persons caught in the rain one Sunday morning near the home of this woman ran in to escape the shower and to chat awhile. As it continued to rain the hostess said:

"Take off your wraps and stay to tea. I wait on you."

The meal consisted of tea, lettuce, sandwiches and jam. There was absolutely nothing else, no little fillers, no dainty trifles that good housekeepers in books are always able to think together at a moment's notice when company unexpectedly descends like the Philistines on the unsuspecting fold. It was served without a scrap of an apology, and served with the formality that would have been employed for a six course banquet.

It was a lesson in gracious hospitality, in true breeding, that was a revelation to every woman present.

BUCKFIELD.

Rev. Leslie E. Coffin died on Friday night, April 6, at Kittery, aged 39 years, 6 months, 12 days.

Mr. Coffin was a native of Lovell and had held Congregational pastorates at Danbury, Ct., Tufordboro, N. H., and Freetown, Mass. He gave up pastoral work on account of his health a couple of years and moved to Kittery. His only work since then was some temporary labor at the navy yard.

Mr. Coffin married Miss Bond, daughter of Franklin T. Bond, of Kittery, who survived. Mrs. Coffin is a licensed preacher of the Congregational church at Hampton, N. H.

Besides the widow there are three children. He also left one sister, Mrs. Smith of Lovell.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon at the First Christian church; Kittery Point.

Why Wood Decays.

Some of the Methods of Treating It to Prevent Decay.

Piles driven by the but dwellers of the Baltic centuries ago are as sound today as when first placed. The wooden columns which support the Egyptian temples, though dead are still preserved in perfect condition after thousands of years of service.

The longevity of timber under these two extremes of climate and moisture conditions has naturally made people ask, What causes wood decay? The answer is, fungi and bacteria, low forms of plant life which live in the wood and draw their nourishment from it.

The little organisms are so little that a microscope is required to see them, yet their work results in the destruction of billions of feet of timber each year and the railroad corporation with its cross tie bill running up into seven figures and the farmer who spends a hundred dollars or so a year for fence posts are alike drawing upon the knowledge of experts in all parts of the world in effort to learn the most economical and most satisfactory method of preserving wood against the inroads of decay. In studying the means of preventing decay wood preserving experts have learned many things about the obnoxious fungi which sap the life of the timber.

The small organisms can grow either in light or in total darkness; but all of them require requisite amounts of air, food, moisture and heat. If one or more of these essential requirements is lacking they can not live, and the decay of timber will not take place. Wood constantly submerged in water never rots, simply because there is an insufficient supply of air. This condition accounts for the soundness of the old Baltic piles. On the other hand, if wood can be kept air dry it will not decay because there will be too little moisture. The timber used by the Egyptians will last indefinitely so long as it is bone dry.

There are a great many cases, however, where it is impossible to keep wood submerged in water, or in an absolutely air dry condition. In fact, a large percentage of the timber which is exposed to the weather, and is subjected to decay, slowly because it contains enough air and enough water for the decomposing organisms to get a foothold. Decay is most serious where the atmosphere is warm and damp, because these conditions are most favorable for its development. In the coal mines of Pennsylvania, timber decays in two or three years because the temperature is warm and constant and the air is damp. And in the south, the warm, humid atmosphere often causes the timber to rapidly decompose.

Decay may be prevented by two general methods, by treating the wood with antiseptics, thus poisoning the food supply of the organisms which cause decay and by treating it with chemicals and making it waterproof. A combination of these two methods is most commonly used, as when wood is treated with creosote which fills up the pores in the timber and keeps out water and is also a powerful antiseptic.

The United States government considers the investigations of the preservative treatment of timber of such importance that the business of one branch of a bureau in the department of agriculture is the "office of wood preservation" in the forest service at Washington—is given over entirely to the work of experiments in co-operation with railroad companies and individuals in protecting the timber of the nation, mine props, bridge timbers, fence posts and transmission poles. Advice and practical assistance is furnished all who request his advice of the forester. The lengthening of life of timber means the saving of thousands of dollars annually through doing away with the heavy expense of labor and cost of material for renewals.

Do You Get Up

With a Lame Back?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everyone knows of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because of its remarkable health restoring properties. Swamp-Root fulfills almost every wish in overcoming rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been thoroughly tested in private practice, and has proved so successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble.

When writing mention the name of the paper in which you saw this advertisement, and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Home of Swamp-Root, Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Doctors

say take Cod Liver Oil—they undoubtedly mean Scott's Emulsion.

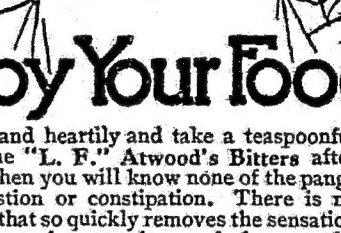

It would be just as sensible for them to prescribe Quinine in its crude form as to prescribe Cod Liver Oil in its natural state. In the oil is emulsified and made easy to take—easy to digest and easy to be absorbed in to the body—and is the most natural and useful fatty food to feed and nourish the wasted body that is known in medicine today.

Nothing can be found to take its place. If you are run-down you should take it.

Send this advertisement, together with name of paper in which it appears, your address and four cents to cover postage, and we will send you a "Complete Handy Atlas of the World." SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl St., New York
